IDS Security and Medical Alert provides an emergency response system. A watch or pendant is worn by the individual. If help is needed, the individual would push a button and have a 24-hour-a-day link to a professionally staffed command center.

Upon receiving a call, operators, who are trained in emergency procedures, place a call to paramedics or police or take other appropriate action. Depending on information in the central station computer that you or your doctor provide, the operators can review your medical history and supply the ambulance or emergency personnel with vital data like medication dosages and any special conditions and instructions. The alert systems have:

- Battery back-up on all systems
- Range up to 300 feet on the emergency transmitter
- UL listed central station
- Low monthly rate monitoring

Medical alert systems can be anklets, bracelets, bed alarms, nurse call systems or GPS medical alarm
