The Hematological Malignancy Clinic at VCU Massey Cancer Center treats leukemia, lymphoma, multiple myeloma and other blood borne cancers. The Clinic offers blood edical oncologists, radiologists and pathologists who research and work together to provide comprehensive diagnosis and treatment of cancers of the blood. The Hematological Malignancy Clinic is the only clinic of its kind in Richmond area.

Professionals from medicine, surgery and radiology join with specialized oncology nurses, dietitians, social workers and therapists to formulate individualized patient care plans, including rapid diagnosis, evaluation for possible recurrence and the need for continued therapy. Follow-up care is provided throughout the treatment and beyond.
