Epilepsy Foundation of Virginia (EFV) may have help with prescriptions. A patient assistance program is a service offered by most major drug companies. If you can't afford your medications, drug manufacturers may offer benefits such as

- Prescription medicine free of charge or at a low cost
- Medicine sent to your home, your doctor's office, or your pharmacy
- Refills for up to a year before reapplying

Help with anti-epileptic medication. Call (434) 924-8669 for more information, or e-mail srb3m@virginia.edu. Financial assistance is available once a year.

Languages: Spanish, French, German, and Dutch; 24-hour emergency service
