FCCR Fredericksburg in Fredericksburg, Virginia, helps men and women struggling with opioid use disorders at the intensive outpatient treatment (IOP) center. Medication-assisted treatment (MAT) utilizes methadone or buprenorphine (Suboxone) to stabilize patients allowing them to benefit from therapies like Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT), Motivational Interviewing (MI), and individual, family, and group counseling.

Following a complete clinical evaluation by experts on opioid addiction treatment, a customized treatment plan will be completed that includes education classes on substance use disorders, trauma-informed care, grief and loss therapy, anger management, and relapse prevention support.
