Good Neighbor Intensive In Home (IIH) Services is a home-based counseling service for children and adolescents under the age of 21 and their families. Counseling includes individual sessions with the youth, family counseling and coordination with other professionals involved. The program addresses issues such as depression, anxiety, substance use, self-injurious behaviors, aggression, defiance and more. Additionally, counselors work with the family on healthy communication skills, establishing household expectations, and much more. Counselors help the family to implement a crisis prevention plan and are available 24 hours every day to respond in crisis situations.
