VCU's Center on Transition Innovations (CTI) is offering online courses. They offer high-quality, intensive training on aspects related to transition. CTI offers two types of courses: facilitated and self-paced. The facilitated courses follow a schedule and have narrated videos, readings, and required assignments designed to help the participant apply course content. The self-paced courses do not follow a set schedule and allow the participant to review the resources at their own pace.

To participate in either of these opportunities, you will need a computer with internet access, Adobe Flash Player software, and a sound card with speakers in order to listen to the presentations.
